

ADMIRAL IN C.I.A. POST*Wright Resumes Active Duty —Was Retired Last Year

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—Admiral Jerauld Wright, who retired last year, has been recalled to active duty and assigned to the Central Intelligence Agency, it became known Wednesday.

The 62-year-old Admiral Wright was formerly Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. He will serve on the Board of National Estimates, the twelve-man senior advisory group in the Central Intelligence Agency on the subject of estimates of foreign military power.

Admiral Wright succeeds Admiral Roscoe E. Sherman, who retired recently.
